WORTH THE CLIMB--Nestled under Overset Mountain in Greenwood, Overset Pond is reachable only by a rough, mile-long woods road more suited to mountain bikes than most cars (and the road may soon be closed to all but hikers, bikers, snowmobilers and ATV users). The Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife plans to kill all fish currently in the pond, in order to eliminate the so-called "trash fish" populations that compete for survival with sports fish such as trout (which would be restocked). (Photo by Michael Daniels)

IF&W wants to 'reclaim' Overset Pond

By MICHAEL DANIELS

By next spring, anglers who make the trek in to Greenwood's Overset Pond may be casting their lines over much-improved populations of brook and brown trout, and perhaps even some rainbows.

But the cost of achieving that state of affairs will be the eradication of all fish life currently in the 21-acre pond.

In a move not seen here for nearly three decades, the Maine Inland Fisheries and Wildlife Department is proposing to "reclaim" the pond this fall by applying the poison rotenone.

By late the following spring, the poison will be gone (it breaks down naturally) and so will all the fish. The pond will then be restocked with trout.

"Where we use this technique is basically waters that have become populated with fish species that compete extensively with species we're trying to manage for, usually trout of some sort, brook trout typically, but sometimes browns or other species," said IF&W fisheries biologist John Boland.

The aim, he said, "is to get rid of competing species such as suckers, sunfish, bass or pickerels. "In Overset's case, we've got huge populations of suckers and golden shiners and lesser populations of other species of fish: hornpout, pumpkinseeds, sunfish and two or three other species of minnows," Boland said.

Eliminating the competition allows the more desirable species to thrive, but the process does not always work as planned. The last local lake to be reclaimed was Lake Christopher, which was treated in 1969 -- but, said local bait and supply dealer Ken Mason "there's still everything in there. There's suckers and pickerel. It's hard to reclaim a big pond."

Everything is still there, Mason added, except the brown trout, sometimes up to five or six pounds, that were in the lake prior to the reclamation, but have not been re-stocked since.

Overset Pond is less than a tenth the size of Lake Christopher, but the brown trout in the little mountain pond can also run to five or six pounds, according to Mason.

Despite the occasional large catch, however, Boland said that neither the brown nor brook trout populations in Overset are doing as well as IF&W would like.

"We stock the brook trout and the brown trout each year," he said. "The brook trout we stock in the spring, and if you go up there fishing in the springtime, you will experience pretty good trout fishing, although those are mostly trout that we've just put in."

"But we're not seeing the growth or holdover ability of the brook trout to where we'd like to see it. If we go back in there in September, we'll see some brook trout, but they'll be a little bit on the lean side. We'd like to see some trout that hold over from year to year -- so that instead of getting all 12-inch trout, every once in a while you get one that's 16 or 17."

"Browns will do a little bit better under more competition," Boland said, "and for that reason we have seen the brown trout fare a little bit better up there. They will feed more extensively on minnow species, other forage species like suckers, sunfish and minnows -- but still, what it all boils down to is that any pond, whether it's a little 20-acre mountain pond or a large lake, can support only so much fish flesh, and by eliminating some of the competition, most of that productivity will be funneled into providing and growing trout."

Local business strong during summer of '98

By ALISON ALOISIO

Despite a soggy start and a jittery stock market, the summer just ended was apparently a robust one for most businesses in the Bethel area.

"It was a great summer, with the exception of a couple of specialty realty stores," said Robin Zinchuk, executive director for the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce.

Lodging, campgrounds and restaurants were particularly busy, benefiting from the pipeliners and more National Training Laboratories clients, said Zinchuk.

And the chamber's reservation service, she said, "did double the reservations we did last year" in August.

The bounty was reflected at the River View Resort in Bethel.

"It was fabulous," said manager Rene McGrew of her summer business in general. "We had a lot of reservations this summer -- and a ton of walk-ins. It would be 9 or 10 o'clock at night and they'd pull into the driveway." In fact, she said, the number of people taking rooms on the spur of the moment seemed greater than last year. They filled what appeared to be somewhat of a gap left by international visitors.

"Last summer there were more international guests," said McGrew.

She has only been managing the resort since a year ago July, so she can't compare this summer to all of last summer. But, she said, "This August was busier than last August. There were a lot of people from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut."

At the Maine House in Bryant Pond, owner Tim Halloran estimated the number of his guests to be roughly 20 percent more than last year.

His business is more predictable, because it is made up mostly of groups that book three to 12 months in advance.

Greenwood, Woodstock will put 'jet-ski' question to Town Meeting votes

"Take it to Town Meeting" -- that was the clear message from the 80 people who gathered in Woodstock last week to discuss a possible local ban on personal watercraft, or "jet skis."

Achieving such a ban here is not simply a matter of an up-or-down local vote, but it begins there -- in this case, in Greenwood and Woodstock.

A Town Meeting vote in favor of some form of regulation would, in effect, send a recommendation to the state Legislature to allow individual towns to restrict personal watercraft.

If lawmakers give their stamp of approval, the responsibility for imposing bans or specific restrictions would then come back to the towns.

Two articles likely

As a result of last week's straw vote, Greenwood and Woodstock selectmen will now meet with representatives of the Community Lakes Association to discuss scheduling special Town Meetings on the issue.

Officials are considering the special meetings because recommendations from towns must be sent to the state by Nov. 1, in order for the Legislature to consider them during its next session.

Greenwood selectman Marie Bartlett said at least two articles would likely be placed on the Town Meeting warrant in each town, with voters choosing from them.

The first would propose an all-out ban on "jet skis" on ponds under 300 acres, which would cover all those in the two towns.

A second article would still allow the craft, but spell out restrictions -- such as limiting the crafts' hours of operation, for example.

Tranquility lost

Both year-round and summer residents -- many of them from North Pond -- voiced their opinions, pro and con, at last Wednesday's meeting.

Sayward Lamb spoke of the tranquility lost on North Pond as a result of increasing numbers of large motorboats and "jet skis."

"I've seen it change within the past five years, with the increased size of motors and boats," he said. Now, he said, "with the onset of 'jet skis,' we have a very unsafe place."

His family uses non-motorized boats, he said, and when they are out on the pond, "once the fast boats and 'jet skis' get out there, we come in," he said.

He said he has seen up to five "jet skis" at a time on North Pond. Lamb favored limiting the size of boats and motors according to the

Rebels kick off fall sports season

By ALISON ALOISIO

New Telstar High School soccer head coach Charlie Raymond is a man with an inheritance.

"I'm inheriting a team from Bob Remington," he says. Raymond takes over this fall from Remington, who retired after teaching and coaching at Telstar for many years.

Raymond's ready-made team, he said, is a nice mix of talent. "I like my overall balance. I don't have one guy who's going to do everything," he said.

Such balance means the other teams can't target one player to shut down during a game, he said.

The balance is indicated by the choice of four players to serve as co-captains. Those four, all seniors, are Jason Rosenberg (forward), Jason Poirier (forward), Chris Vaughan (midfielder) and Jeremy Curley (midfielder).

Forward Ramsey Harrington and defenseman Matt Hiebert and Jeff Chandler round out the seniors on the Rebel varsity squad.

Juniors include Alex Ojeda (forward) and Jon Shaw (defense).

The team has a large representation of sophomores, including midfielders Greg Koch, Will Seames and Dan Zinchuk; defensemen Eric Swasey and Steve Estes; and goalkeepers Bob Bean and Jeremy Golden. Two freshmen, David Ojeda and Kaleb Durgin, are also expected to play for the varsity.

While Raymond is inheriting the team, he also knows them well himself -- he coached all of them in middle school, where he served as varsity coach for four years. "They have good attitudes. We have potential. Whether or not we perform -- that will be the key to the season," said Raymond.

Field hockey

Coach Gail Wight's goal for this year's Telstar field hockey squad is to have a team that is fleet of foot.

"I'm looking for speed from the forwards," she said. "That will also force the backs to play fast," she said.

Plenty of fresh legs should help the cause. Wight has 15 returning lettermen, including senior forwards Angie Baker, Mandy Berry, Malinda Gilbert; backs Erin Riley, Jen Stevens, Erin Osgood, Jaime Grover, Jamie Johnson, Staci Littlehale, MaryAnn Lowe and Sadie Reed; and goalkeeper Emily Phillips.

Junior Heather Roderick, a forward and fullback Erin Dennis, a fullback, and sophomore Marianne Nadeau complete the lineup of lettermen.

CONTROL IS THE SOLUTION

To the Editor:

We are property owners on North Pond and had planned on attending the meeting on Sept. 2, but my husband was forced to have emergency surgery on Sept. 1.

Nonetheless, we would still like to be heard.

We also are owners of "jet skis" and boats and have enjoyed North Pond for many years. We have four children, and we all enjoy our weekends and vacations in Maine.

We think it would be foolish to discontinue use of "jet skis" on North Pond. That's the reason (or one of the reasons) we bought land here -- so we could enjoy the land and water as a family.

"Jet skis," when being used properly, are not dangerous to people or our waters. I do agree there should be some control of the use of them -- ex: age, the hours of use and the distance on how close you should be from shore.

But doing away with them is not the answer here -- control is the solution.

Please don't take away our enjoyable weekends in your beautiful state.

BLOWN OUT OF PROPORTION

To the Editor:

In response to the letter in the Sept. 3 edition of The Citizen, we have a few things to say. Sometimes it amazes us how people can blow things out of proportion. We can't help but think that if someone had a family activity that was safe (because it is made safe) and enjoyable, and it was threatened to be banned, that they wouldn't do something to stop it. It's obvious that some people can't stand change and will go to any length to stop it. Change is inevitable. We could easily find something different to do as a family, but we enjoy what we are doing. We follow all the regulations and make less wake and noise than most of the ski boats on lakes today.

We attended the meeting in Woodstock on Wednesday, Sept. 2, and were glad to see at least some "anti-ban people" there. We feel that a ban is not the answer to the problem at hand. Strict regulations and policing of those regulations, in our opinion, is the answer. The wardens will have to enforce a ban, just as they could enforce the rules now. Less money would be spent if they just dealt with individual cases rather than an all-out ban. The video shown at the meeting presented no wrongdoing on the part of the "jet skis" or the boats, canoes, sailboats, etc. It was just an attempt to stack the deck. But it backfired. Mr. DeNormandie contradicted every one of the statistics presented. We applaud Mr. DeNormandie for researching and presenting the "real" facts on jet ski safety. It must be difficult being a minority on the Lakes Association.

We have been harassed, just because we are "jet ski" owners, for things that have nothing to do with us. It was reported last summer that there were two "jet skis" on Songo racing and chasing loons; a warden came to the pond and observed nothing to warrant a citation. This summer, we have been reported to the district conservationist for having dumped some fill at the public boat landing. Now, the landing, in all due respect, does need some drastic help, but just because our family owns a stone and gravel business and we own that killer "jet ski," it was automatically assumed we did it. At least they could have called us and asked if it was indeed us before reporting us. For everyone's information, it wasn't us. We have been researching, along with other users of the landing, the legal way to fix it up.

In closing, we would like to add that we would be glad to see some more wardens on the area ponds and lakes. We have nothing to hide, do we?

"Jet skis"

ON OPPOSITE SIDES--Nancy Vandenberg of North Pond wants her rights as a "jet skier" preserved, while Shagg Pond summer resident Jim Moran, a U.S. Congressman from Virginia, says area ponds are too small for the craft.

size of a pond.

John Brown, also a North Pond resident, spoke of the "jet skis" effect on the shallow bottom of the pond. "They tear up the bottom," he said, and plant material then drifts onto his property. "We have to rake it up," he said.

Additionally, said Brown, when the water is high in June and July, the wakes created "raise the devil with the shoreline."

Also attending last week's meeting was Shagg Pond summer resident Jim Moran of Alexandria, Virginia. Moran is a U.S. Congressman who serves on the Subcommittee on the Interior, which recommends appropriations for the National Park Service.

The Park Service, he said, plans to ban personal watercraft in national parks for three reasons: safety and liability issues, the prohibitive cost of rule enforcement and the need to foster habitat for waterfowl.

The benefits of "jet skis," said Moran, "are not worth the cost of the liability." (Forty-three states have also imposed restrictions on the craft.)

Looking at the issue locally, Moran said the craft "are not appropriate for most ponds in this area." "Jet skis" are better suited to large lakes, he said.

Moran also said that non-resident pond property owners pay a substantial amount of tax money to area towns. "We ask for nothing more than to leave it as much as possible as it is," he said of the ponds.

Other pond residents reiterated concerns expressed in the past about the craft, such as loud noise and frequent disregard for safe boating rules.

Train whistles, beepers also noisy
But several "jet ski" owners in the audience argued for their own rights.

Bunice Packard of North Pond said her family has "jet skis," and she uses one herself. "I'm over 40, but I still want to get out there and have a little fun," she said.

She questioned why no one complained about nearby train whistles and heavy equipment warning beepers, which can be heard in the early morning hours.

She said the pond is changing generally, with "more houses going up and people coming in. That's the way it is, and you're going to have to deal with it," she said.

Packard said she favored controls on "jet skis," such as making parents responsible for their children's conduct on the craft.

Nancy Vandenberg, another North Pond resident, said this is not the first time pond residents have complained about increased noise. When she was young in the 1950s, she said, they objected when her family bought a 15-horsepower motor to use for waterskiing.

Now, she said, her family has "jet skis," and she uses them. "Kids nowadays need to have fun, too," she said.

Her remarks drew applause from more than a dozen in attendance.

Jim DeNormandie suggested that instead of a ban, current enforcement should target watercraft for such violations as prolonged circling, wave jumping and imprudent operation.

Rep. Tom Winsor said that if the Legislature approves town regulation of the craft, the state would expect the municipalities to help with the enforcement.

Winsor said later he favors education and better enforcement of current laws rather than a ban.

Winsor believes pond residents have legitimate concerns about the craft, he said. But he also thinks legislators have a responsibility to consider the wishes of lake users who do not live on the water bodies -- and who may want to preserve the right to use "jet skis."

For instance, said Winsor, the lakes "also belong to people in Portland and South Portland, and they will have to weigh in on this, too."

At the end of last week's meeting, moderator Elton Cole asked for a show of hands from year-round residents who favored holding Town Meetings to consider recommending an ordinance. A large majority voted in favor, with only a handful opposed.

MAJORITY OPINION--Most of the people attending a public meeting on "jet skis" last week wanted the issue to go to Town Meetings in Greenwood and Woodstock.

Wolves and Governor Red Riding Hood

By MIKE BROWN

Is Gov. Angus King Jr. a wolf in sheep's wool or a sheep in wolf's hide?

Probably.

An executive proclamation emanating from King's office that the third week of October would be officially "Wolf Awareness Week" was rescinded by him last week in a Little Red Riding Hood cry-wolf paeon to grandma's voting place after the governor returned from vacation.

In King's version of election year political artful dodger redemption he claims the proclamation was signed (by whom?) unbeknownst to him while he was off recreating.

King's head flack, Dennis Bailey, a media hype type whom most governors would expect to eyeball executive paper flowage, pleads The Fifth, saying not he but a "staff member" just routinely and mistakenly signed (the governor's name?) the proclamation and splashed it to the hustings without Bailey's knowledge.

So much for the paper that executive proclamations are signed on. And so like Bailey's blaming someone else for his staff supervisory incompetence, Bailey said that he never knew of another executive proclamation ever being rescinded. Apparently another Angus King first.

The real story of rescinded wolves is found in SAM missile politics. SAM, that is the Sportsman's Alliance of Maine, whose executive director George Smith is a King toady in a cheap Republican suit. SAM also, as everyone knows or should by now, is the shadow star chamber of the blood sports Dept. of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife.

SAM doesn't want wolves or any other endangered two-or-four-legged from-away's anywhere near its private game farm, which is the entire 35,387 square mile state of Maine. Why? The IFW gamekeepers have a good thing going. It annually issues, count 'em, 141 separate licenses, permits and fees, collecting some $14.5 million which it keeps all to its greedy self.

The IFW department revenues and appropriations are unique in Maine state government through a rare constitutional amendment which mandates the state must appropriate from its general fund an amount equal to IFW's total revenues collected.

That legal provision means that while all other state departments and agencies can be cut in times of need, or appropriations legislatively adjusted, the IFW is uniquely revenue dedicated and cannot receive less money than it generates in fees, licenses, etc.

Wolves don't fit into the IFW gaming picture. These animals are classified as nationally endangered and off the killing list.

SAM's anti-wolf wheedle says "wolves could damage the deer and moose herds in Maine" and probably force hang-fire hunters to give up their rifles, traps and snowmobiles if the wolf-endangered mantra falls on the Dirigo forest.

Holy Wolf Packs! Hardly, Red Riding Hood. Even the IFW admits that only a couple curious mom and pop wolves may wander into Maine from Canada. Roving packs? One gray wolf was killed in northeastern Maine in 1993, the first so verified in more than 100 years.

And so when SAM found out about the King's proclamation and how it threatened its membership carving a tributary stream into IFW's $7.6 million game license money wide river, SAM immediately fired a muzzle loader across King's vacation easy rider Harley handlebars reminding him of an election a couple months hence.

Little Red Riding Hood did a political wheedle and collected the media maven's said it was all a simple vacation mistake. And so we'll just let it be, let it be, said the Beetle media forest who couldn't see for the political trees.

The King re-election political ad of the week: "I never saw a gray wolf, I never hope to see one. And I can tell you right now that SAM and me will never vote to welcome one."

Boat collision throws five in water

RANGELEY--A Sandy River Plantation man was in stable condition Tuesday with chest injuries suffered when his boat and another driven by his father collided in Rangeley Lake. Robert Ferguson, 30, was treated for a collapsed lung and broken ribs suffered in the Labor Day accident. The two boats apparently came around Doctor's Island from opposite directions and turned into each other, according to a warden service officer. Five of the eight occupants of the two boats were thrown overboard. They were able to make their way to the island to await rescue.

Close WMNF office midweek?

BETHEL--In response to declining budgets, the Androscoggin Ranger District of the White Mountain National Forest is looking for options on how best to provide visitor services from Columbus Day through Memorial Day. One possibility is closing the visitor centers in Bethel and Gorham, N.H. for one or two days midweek so they may be open on weekends. The Forest Service is seeking public input on the idea by Sept. 21. Contact district ranger George Pozzuto at 300 Glen Rd., Gorham, N.H. 03581 or by e-mail at gpozuto@r9whitemtn@fs.fed.us.

Firefighters battle wildfire

NORWAY--A wildfire blackened about 2 1/2 acres of forest Sunday afternoon before firefighters brought it under control, the Maine Forest Service said. A helicopter dropped water on the blaze for about three hours while forest rangers and local firefighters battled it on the ground, said Ranger Jim Downie. The fire was brought under control by early Sunday evening, but Downie expected suppression efforts to continue. "The fires are burning very deep right now, so it should be there a few days," Downie said. Downie said authorities were unsure what caused the fire to break out in an isolated area. But he said the forest floor has been exceptionally dry, and investigators were considering several possible causes ranging from lightning to careless campers. No one was injured by the fire and no property was damaged, Downie said.

Paris hires new manager

PARIS--Stephen McAllister of Oxford has been hired as Paris' new town manager. McAllister, 36, is a native of Paris, and will replace outgoing manager Jim Kane beginning Sept. 28. He graduated from Oxford Hills High School in 1980, and served in the Navy. For the past three years he has been manager of systems and administration for the New England Public Warehouse in Paris. He also has 11 years of experience as a reserve police officer, seven of them with the Paris Police Department.

Oxford County Fair next week

NORWAY--From Sept. 16 through the 19th, the Oxford County Fairgrounds will offer a variety of entertainment, including: rides with Smokey's Greater Shows, a climbing wall, the Chainsaw Man, a harness maker, racing snow machines, exhibition halls and all the animals. Ride specials will be available part of Thursday and Saturday, and all senior citizens may have free coffee and donut holes at the fair food booth.

Track breakfast planned

BETHEL--The Telstar Track Boosters will sponsor a breakfast on Sunday, Sept. 20, from 8 to 10 a.m. at the NTL Dining Hall, Broad Street, Bethel. The menu will include pancakes, scrambled eggs and bacon. Cost is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children under five. Proceeds will benefit the project to construct a track at Telstar.

Hospice needs volunteers

LEWISTON--Hospice of Androscoggin Home Health Services is seeking people interested in becoming Hospice volunteers. The Hospice provides support for terminally ill patients and their families, and includes physicians, nurses, home health aides, social workers, clergy and volunteers. Volunteers may make regular visits with the patient and family, do errands and shopping, stay with a patient for several hours while the family caregiver gets away, provide transportation to a doctor's office, or meet other needs. Volunteers need to be non-judgmental, warm, compassionate and a good listener, and be able to respect confidentiality. They must also have their own transportation. Volunteers are especially needed during the daytime hours. A two-hour training course will be provided. For more information, call Nancy Greene at 1-800-482-7412.

Hikers not opposed to parking fees

LINCOLN, N.H.--While many local residents still oppose paying to park at White Mountain National Forest trails, out-of-town hikers appear to be taking the fees in stride. Sixteen months after the White Mountain National Forest started charging parking fees to use its hiking trails, hikers say they don't mind paying as long as the money is used to preserve the forest and its facilities. "If they need the money to maintain the parks then I think it's all right," said Lisa Engstrom, of Glen Cove, N.Y. She and her boyfriend spent four days hiking through the Presidential range in Jefferson, Gorham and Jackson. Engstrom and others interviewed at the Lincoln Woods parking lot recently mirrored the results of a White Mountain National Forest survey released in May, a year after the fees were established. More than 70 percent of the 6,189 survey respondents said they support the program. More than 75 percent also said they believe the $5 weekly parking pass and the $20 annual pass are reasonable to use the national forest. Compliance for the federal program was also strong, according to the survey. Approximately 40 percent of the cars parked on the forest displayed the pass. Those that didn't already have permits were tagged with notices asking them to pay. Half of those drivers later purchased passes, raising the compliance level to more than 70 percent.

Timberlands good investment

PORTLAND--Investors are showing growing interest in timberlands, which have a good track record for returns and are seen as a hedge against the ups and downs of the stock market. "It's becoming more popular by leaps and bounds," said Brad Vicary, a forest economist who represents woodland investors at James Sewall Co., a consulting engineering firm in Old Town. "It's a green investment." One of Maine's big landholders, Sappi Fine Paper, is planning to sell 911,000 acres of western Maine woodlands, although it's keeping its two paper mills in Maine. With the trend toward "green" investments, the buyer could turn out to be a firm interested in using forest investments to stabilize and diversify portfolios for pension funds and other long-term holdings, rather than a forest-products company. Timberlands' value tends to move in cycles that run counter to stocks and bonds, while its price moves independently of the real estate market, according to Vicary and others. Timberlands also have a record of paying attractive annual rates of return, from 6 percent to 12 percent after inflation.

Foliage info available

AUGUSTA--The 1998 Fall Foliage Report will be faxed to media outlets and travel information providers every Wednesday from Sept. 16 through Oct. 14, the Maine Department of Conservation announced this week. The department's Internet site may also be accessed at www.state.me.us. Current foliage conditions are also available on the Maine Foliage Hotline at 1-888-MAINE45. Last year the department received almost 500 e-mail messages regarding the foliage. A popular feature of last year's site that will be repeated in 1998 are photos of current foliage conditions. "I expected to get comments from people who had never seen our vibrant fall foliage before, but was surprised by the amount of e-mail I received from native Mainers now living in other parts of the country who watched our foliage peak on-line," said information director Susan Benson. An example from a California resident: "It is great to see the brilliant colors of fall fill up my computer screen as I sit here longing to be back home."

From the Bethel Police log:

A good cleaning prevents charges

At 8:45 a.m. on Sept. 7 police received a report that during the night there had been a large party off the Farwell Mountain Road, and the remains of a bonfire were still there. Police found a subject in a vehicle that was still parked at the site. The subject said he had been at the party, which was attended by more than 60 juveniles. The subject was told he was guilty of criminal trespass, littering and burning without a permit. The officer told him if he cleaned the area of debris by 3 p.m., there would be no charges filed. The subject agreed. When the officer returned later, the area was clean.

Friday, Sept. 4

At 1:05 a.m. police observed a vehicle weaving back and forth on Route 26. The officer stopped the vehicle and found the registration had expired in May. Shannon Moxcey, 28, of Bryant Pond was issued a summons for operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

Saturday, Sept. 5

At 5:30 p.m. police observed a vehicle traveling south on Route 5 at 62 miles per hour in a 45 m.p.h. zone. The vehicle was stopped, and it was found the driver's New York license had been surrendered. William J. Fortin, 41, of Cortland, N.Y. was given a summons for speeding and operating without a license.

Monday, Sept. 7

At 1:50 p.m. Richard Pickering, Jr., 32, of Hollis was issued a summons for speeding 61 miles per hour in a 45 m.p.h. zone on Route 5, and operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

At 4:45 p.m. a subject was observed in violation of the Bethel skateboard ordinance by riding his board from the Parkway to Lincoln Street. The board was taken away for 30 days.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies. An answering machine takes calls when an officer is not in the office.

Pond

Rotenone

A product of tropical and subtropical plants of the legume (pea) family, rotenone is a naturally occurring botanical fish-killing agent that has been used by fisheries managers for at least 50 years.

For centuries prior to that it was used by indigenous tribes to stun fish, which would then be recovered for food.

In the dosages used by IF&W, rotenone is not considered toxic to plants or other wildlife, according to Roy Bouchard, a biologist for the Maine Department of Environmental Protection.

In 1981 the federal Environmental Protection Agency concluded: "there was no reason to restrict the use of rotenone in waters intended for irrigation, livestock consumption or recreational swimming uses."

According to IF&W's Boland: "We do this work in the fall, the fish die, the rotenone breaks down with warm waters and sunlight (of spring) and by sometime in the middle of the spring it's basically out of the system totally. Then we restock and we're back up and running. A lot of times the fishermen will hardly miss it, especially on a pond like Overset that's closed to ice fishing."

Rainbows on the horizon?

If the reclamation goes well, Boland said, the department may also restock the pond with rainbow trout.

Rainbows are not currently stocked by IF&W, and they are not generally found in local ponds and lakes (although a breeding population appears to be reestablishing itself in the upper Androscoggin and some of its tributaries, probably, Boland said, as a result of stocking upstream in New Hampshire.)

Overset Pond is reached by a rough, one-mile long woods road off the Willis Mills Road in Greenwood City.

The pond is currently designated as fly-fishing only, and that will not change as a result of the reclamation, Boland said. "We'll continue it with the same regs. The only thing we will change is that we will close it to the taking of bait."

Unwanted fish species are sometimes inadvertently introduced to a body of water by people collecting bait, Boland said, "and sometimes the bait dealers see a neat little niche for their shiners."

Boland said he also approved of landowner Dick Penley's plan to gate the road leading to the pond.

"I really don't have a problem with that -- for a couple of reasons: it will be equal access for everybody, and it will tend to really discourage bait dealers from repopulating the pond with unwanted species."

Penley has "still got a very positive attitude toward public access," Boland said. "They don't plan to do anything to discourage access."

Public hearing

IF&W will hold a public hearing on the Overset Pond reclamation proposal, on Sept. 24, at Oxford Hills High School, at 7 p.m. For more information, call 657-2345.

Summer business

The Labor Day weekend just past was also busy -- contrary to what sometimes happens, he said. With people gearing up to go back to work or send their children back to school, that weekend can be slow, as families often stay home to prepare for their change in schedule, he said.

On the retail side, Ellen Whitney of Maine Line Products gift store in Locke Mills and Bethel characterized her business as "at least equal to a good summer, if not better, than last summer. Both stores did well."

The Locke Mills store just concluded its first summer. "It met the expectations we had for it," said Whitney.

At the Wild Rose in Bethel's Philbrook Place, Litty Parker described her overall summer as good, although last year seemed to be a little stronger.

"July and August (of this year) were good," she said.

And in the restaurant department, manager Donna Gillies of Pat's Pizza in Bethel said, "It was the best summer we've ever had -- probably the best summer we will ever have, thanks to the pipeliner. We're scared about next year without them."

Business was also strong from vacationers and local people, she said, and lasted right through the Labor Day weekend. "The reason we're able to be open 12 months a year is that we have strong local support," said Gillies.

Hikers and vacationers were also in abundance in the White Mountain National Forest, according to Pat Nasta of the U.S. Forest Service. Numbers were up this summer, she said, and part of the increase may stem from interest generated through a WMNF Internet web site.

Tourism office agrees

The generally good reports from the Bethel area seem to jibe with a recent report from the Maine Office of Tourism regarding business statewide.

"While the summer tourism season got off to a slow start because of a rainy June, businesses and chambers of commerce report visits picked up considerably during July and August, and the summer of 1998 will go down as a good one overall," it said.

Rebels

have also seen varsity playing time in the young season.

There are also two dozen junior varsity players. "We have a strong group of underclassmen," said Wight. "As long as they improve, they'll push them (the varsity)."

Subbing to keep fresh players on the field, said Wight, is a Mountain Valley Conference tradition. "I tell them (her players), 'play really well for 10 minutes and help the team,'" she said.

Last year's squad went 8-8, making the playoffs in the last possible position, eighth.

"We hope to better that," said Wight. "If they improve on their record, they will be in the playoffs."

Some of the strongest opposition should come from teams like Hall-Dale, Jay and Leavitt.

Cross-country and golf

Telstar's smallest fall sport teams, cross-country and golf, have fewer than 10 members each.

The cross-country lineup includes juniors Jenn Shaw, Jen Howe, Lacey Hebert and Katrine Burgi, and freshmen Anna Willard, Nichole Schroeder, Joel Doyon, Josh Hamel and Francesco Gaura.

Shaw and Howe are the only returning veterans. Said coach John Applin, "The others (of the girls) are showing potential, particularly Anna Willard. For the boys, all are ninth graders and just learning to ropes."

Applin is still looking to add members to the team, he said.

The golf team's seven members are a mix of experience and new blood.

Top golfer is senior Neil Thurlow.

He, with returning junior Matt Lawrence, make a good "one-two punch," says coach Jim Lunney.

Other returnees include juniors Josh Mowery and Per Sandstrom.

New to the high school team are sophomores Dan Stevens and Chuck Johnson, and freshman Josh Eickenberger.

Lunney figures that for his team to qualify for Class C playoffs, they will have to beat either Hall-Dale or Winthrop, perennial powers in the class. The Rebels' record through four matches is 2-2.

Also playing with the Rebels -- but not for them -- is junior Rusty Williams of Buckfield, who competes as an individual. His high school does not have a team, so he plays by special arrangement between the schools.

by Virginia Keniston

On Saturday, Aug. 29, Bob and Ginny Keniston, along with Glenn and Martha Bangs boarded a bush plane at remote Lac Grandmesnil in Quebec, 100 miles north of the St. Lawrence River. This was to be the start of their return trip home after a week of trout fishing in the Canadian wilderness, a 23-year tradition for Bob and Ginny.

That morning as they were packing up and cleaning the camp for the next party to enjoy, it was noted that bad weather was fast approaching.

The plane arrived as scheduled and a group of four from Dixfield came ashore to take their place and enjoy the wonderful fishing.

Once in the air and headed southeast, it was evident the ceiling was lowering fast. It became a case of making sure you could see mountain tops. Bush planes fly by visual flight rules -- no instruments to help see through the clouds. After 30 minutes into the flight the visibility became so poor it was impossible to pick a path through the clouds, so the pilot wisely turned back and landed where on previous trips he had noticed there was a camp. Matthew Sturgeon is only 21 years old, but a skilled flyer and exercises extremely good judgment. Matthew said, "It is better to return late than not to return at all."

Five persons, all dressed in rain gear, appeared from the camp and helped beach the plane. A sense of hospitality was instantly forthcoming. Soon everyone was in the camp and drinking coffee.

The five hosts turned out to be Roland Guerette, a body shop business owner from Montreal; Jean Montavani, a restaurant and club owner also from Montreal and Roland's partner in the camp and their plane; Jean Benard from Paris, France, a retired engineer who had worked on the design of France's La Concorde giant jetliner; and two other fellows who had been brought along to work on clearing land around the camp and do sundry chores.

Roland Guerette speaks English! A two-day and two-night stay in an unfamiliar location turned out to be a most enjoyable experience. The French have a great zest for life and enjoy every minute of it. They soon had their unexpected guests laughing and sharing their ever-joyous mood.

This "camp" was very spacious, with a dining table large enough to seat 10 people, gas and electric lights, gas refrigerator, hot and cold running water, hot shower, inside plumbing, gas and wood heat, gas stove and wood stove to cook on, a complete stainless steel kitchen, two-way radio, and a tape player.

In addition to all these conveniences, the ever-gracious hosts vacated two of the bedrooms so Bob and Ginny and Martha and Glenn each had a private room with comfortable beds. How's that for hospitality?

What little food was left from the fishing trip was brought into camp and added to the camp's supply, which was running low. That meant someone had to go fishing. The two guys pulling stumps were more than willing to change jobs. However, this is not meant to suggest skimpy meals. The three gourmet cooks in the crowd came through in flying colors. It was fun guessing the contents of the large soup kettle that was always simmering on the stove, and it got tastier and spicier each meal, never lacking for garlic. Of course there were such things as french toast, brook trout, spaghetti, pork chops, eggs and much more, all prepared to perfection.

Early in the morning of day three, Matthew, the pilot, after spending some time on the radio with weather people, announced it was time to try flying to Sept Iles, our destination.

Goodbyes and expressions of gratitude were emotionally relayed to the hosts and the DeHavilland Beaver roared to life.

The weather was still foggy and overcast. Fifteen minutes into the flight again Mother Nature took control and another landing on a remote lake. It was 7 a.m. Most of the time until 2 p.m. was spent exploring the rocky shore while hoping the breeze would shift into the west.

Finally, the ripple on the lake was coming from that direction. The noontime meal of Cheerios and peanut butter was forgotten and it was time to try again. About this time, for the first time in three days, another plane could be heard, and Matthew quickly made radio contact. The weather to the southwest was clearing and flyable according to the other pilot.

Once again, the Beaver climbed toward the clouds, but flying at the regular altitude of 3,000 feet, plus or minus, proved unsafe. The Saint Marguerite River valley came into view. That river runs handy to Sept Iles, and proved to be just what was needed for a guide.

Down the river, hugging the treetops, and Lac Rapide, the seaplane base came into view in about 10 minutes. Several smiling faces came down to the dock as the Beaver coasted to a stop.

Stuck in the bush, yes -- bad deal, no.

Bethel House

by Ruth Cummings

There was a potluck supper at The Bethel Alliance Church on the 18th. It was also a birthday party for Pastor Rick. Peggy brought him into the church in a wheelchair. That got a big laugh out of everyone, even Pastor Rick. Peggy pushed the wheelchair right up to the table and he sat in it as he ate and after the supper, and we all moved into the sanctuary for the roasting ceremonies, where he sat in it again. No, he really did not need the chair, that was just part of the roasting. He is still some under retirement age, in fact quite a lot.

Pastor's sister and an aunt and uncle, and I believe other family members from away, were there to join the fun. A video was shown of when he really was young. Nancy Fox had a reading and Cindy Millett read some original poems. Pastor's sister spoke and a friend of his also spoke. The ladies trio had two songs. Pastor Rick received gifts and cards. A lot of them were jokes, but he enjoyed every minute of it as well as did the rest of us. I did not count how many were there, but I guess between 60 and 70.

Here is the last verse of a poem Cindy Millett read, and I believe wrote: "All jokes aside ad truth to tell/Dear Pastor Rick, we wish you well/For God did know just who to send/To this Maine town, His flock to tend."

tended the birthday party for Pastor Rick. Lillian spent the weekend with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Drew Webster.

A special friend and a prayer partner of Pastor Rick's also attended the supper and party, and he had a few words to say at a time after supper. I believe he was from Casco.

Peter Morton was waiting for me when I got home, and he had a lot of clams for me to steam. He stayed until almost 10 p.m. I certainly enjoyed his visit and the clams, too.

Saturday, Aug. 29, was work day at Bethel Alliance Church. A good crowd showed up and a lot was accomplished.

Descendants of Charles William Sawyer and Annie Dunham Sawyer met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Paine on the Webster Road in Newry on Sunday, Aug. 30, for a reunion. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Hanscom Sr.; Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Hanscom Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bragdon; Denise and Keith Walley and Nathan Cheever; David J. Hanscom and Susan Richardson; Mr. and Mrs. David T. Hanscom; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cole, Emma and Megan; Mrs. Peter Anderson; Mr. and Mrs. Brian Hanscom, Jay, Adam, Eric and Kelsie; Ruth Cummings and Vada Glover; Mr. and Mrs. James Paine; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Paine and two children; Mr. and Mrs. George Sawyer; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wuori. I hope all signed the guest book. David Hanscom and George Sawyer played horseshoes against Harold Paine and Rodney Hanscom Jr. David and George won one game. I do not know who won in the other games. It was decided to meet at the same place on Aug. 8, 1999. A great time was had by everyone.

Pastor Rick's message for Sunday, Aug. 30, was "Highway to Hell or Country Road to Heaven?" It was committee night at Bethel Alliance Church on Aug. 30. The meetings are always held on the fourth Sunday of the month.

I am on the Fellowship Committee and planned to attend, but no one came to pick me up. I was very disappointed. Actually, though, I do not know if there is much sense to have a fellowship committee, as we vote to have so many things that we do not get to do. I am in favor of potluck suppers and so are other committee members. We vote for them but so many of them never get to be. We voted in May to go to an amusement park during the summer but that never happened either.

Tom Russell visited his mother, Irene, at the Bethel House recently, and Margaret Quinlan and Irene Russell enjoyed dinner at the Northland on Sunday.

Jean Palanzo and Don Robinson were here Monday of last week mowing the lawn and working around the flowers. Jean's dog came, too, and he had a great time visiting with the residents that were outside.

Bryant Pond

by Alice Hoyt

Judith Grover Tent 17 will meet for a regular meeting on Sept. 14 at the Grange Hall.

There will be a tasting party. Bryant Pond hour on Channel IV TV is Thursday at 7 p.m. and Saturday at 9 a.m.

School has started and several young people from town have gone to college. Lori Young, daughter of Rick and Missy Young entered Drew University in Madison, N.J.; Lori Davis, daughter of Phillip and Sonja Davis, is at University of Maine at Farmington; Michelle McInnis, daughter of Percy and Robyn McInnis, entered Colby College in Waterville; Megan Cole, daughter of Elton and Christine Cole, is a student at Quinnipiac College in Connecticut. If you know of others, please let me know (665-2460).

The Woodstock Extension will meet on Wednesday, Sept. 16, at the Woodstock Town Annex at 10:30 a.m. Bring a brown bag lunch. The program will be projects for the Holiday Open House in the fall.

Thirty-one members of the Woodstock-Greenwood Senior Citizens and two guests were present at the meeting on Thursday. A brown bag dinner was served by the Star Birthday Club. Next meeting is dinner out at the Bull Ring Steakhouse.

Curator Larry Billings recently framed a portrait given him by the Reagan and Bush families from the White House.

The Historical Society finds value in the past and makes it real to people today. It keeps good records of its exhibits. This is important for those doing research or simply wanting to know the extent of the society's holdings.

The society's files are primarily for use by those watching the museum, but Curator Billings will also explain them to others. The cataloging system is by no means perfect, but at least there is one, and it is systematically maintained.

Curator Billings recently met Congressman and Mrs. James Morin from Virginia. Basil Sequin introduced him to them. They were very gracious.

Cecile and Maurice Lescault watched the museum recently. Be sure to attend meetings at the museum this fall and winter. They are the second Saturday of each month at 7 p.m. Topics are of general interest and refreshments are served.

Find out why
you're the U in Unicel

"As someone who has lived and worked in Maine for the better part of my life, it's important to me to do business with Maine companies. That's why I was pleasantly surprised to learn that Unicel is a Maine company — with headquarters in Bangor. If those folks are anything like my sales representative here in the Farmington area, they're very fine people.

"Another thing I like is Unicel's no-charge, detailed billing. Especially since my family is on different calling plans, I really need to see who's doing the talking! Which reminds me ... I should probably change my daughter's plan to a different one! You know, having the opportunity to select from Unicel's various calling plans makes a lot of sense — no matter whether you're using the phone for business or for personal calls."

Songo Pond

by Alice Kimball

A reminder -- the Albany Improvement Association will hold a public supper at the Albany Church on Saturday, Sept. 12, at 5:30 p.m.

This week saw a large moving van next door, as Teri Cook and Tom Richardson were moving to Vermont, where Tom will be president of Sugarbush Ski Resort. We wish them well.

Welcome to our new neighbors, Art, Ellen, Sarah, Chelsea and Bill Marshall.

With so many logging and pipeline trucks along with the extra holiday traffic on Route 5 and now school buses double tripping, drivers must be extra alert.

A little extra coolness in the air this week has been a forewarning of things to come.

Life is like a mirror -- we get the best results when we smile at it. --P. Hansen--

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson

Hi readers. I have sad news this week, as my dear sister-in-law, Carolyn Heino, passed away Friday night, Aug. 28, at Market Square Health Care Center.

in South Paris. We have had some good times together, and we shall miss her terribly, but she is at peace now and is beside her dear husband, Walter. We give thanks to all her friends who were so good and caring to her these past few months.

Carol Davis of California is home for a few days to be with her mother, Geneva Tripp, and her family and to attend Carolyn's services.

Sharon Traish, Aisha, Jaffer and Nawal from Massachusetts have been at their cottage at Keewaydin Lake for a few days of vacation. Aisha went back to Massachusetts a day early in order to get settled in at Boston University, where she will pursue her medical profession, studying to be a doctor.

Cheryl Barnard, Jenna and Lindsey from Virginia were here at her parents' a few days to attend the graveside services for their Aunt "Carky."

Albert Nelson, Sr., has been busy lately delivering wood to his customers so they can be warm this next winter. There's nothing like a good wood stove to get warm by.

Linda Allen and sister Rosemary and Iva Fox visited Olive Stearns Morrell in Poland recently.

On Thursday, Aug. 27, eight members of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Tent 19, and honored guest, National D.U.V. President Gail Butterfield were in attendance at a meeting here at the K. of P. Hall in East Stoneham. The meeting was opened by Tent President Eleanor Nelson at 7:30 p.m. Secretary and treasurer's reports were given and accepted.

A reception is being planned for Gail on Nov. 7 at the Double Tree in Portland. There will be a 6 p.m. social hour and supper at 6:30.

It was voted at National Convention to adopt the Lincoln Rose as the official flower. Seven Daughters from Maine attended the convention, which was held in Ohio in August, with two from Portland, one from Bryant Pond, one from Norway, and three from Stoneham. Gail was installed as national president by Past National President Ruth Jordan of Portland, and Sally Sawyer of Bryant Pond was installed as National D.U.V. secretary.

Plans are to be made for the 1999 National Convention to be held in Maine and a meeting concerning this will be held on Sept. 18 at 7:15 p.m. at the home of Joyce Gouin. Plans are for about 150 people.

Inspection of Tent D.U.V. is planned for Monday, Oct. 12, with Bryant Pond Tent hosting the supper and meeting there.

Eloise Vail won the mystery prize. The meeting was adjourned until the next meeting at the K. of P. Hall on Sept. 24.

The beautiful Labor Day weekend found the town buzzing with activity on all fronts.

Again the population doubled. It must have swelled to way over a hundred, counting the pets that came along for the good life "Up Country."

Sue Nelson's new member of the family is a wounded hummingbird called "Elmer." The poor little creature flew into the glass at her house, injuring its shoulder. He has difficulty moving the affected wing and cannot fly yet. Sue has been hand feeding him with fresh flowers and hummingbird nectar. He is a fussy little guy, preferring phlox to nasturtiums, and they must be fresh. Although he is receiving very good care, he will probably spend the winter at a bird sanctuary.

Bigger folks on the injured list are Carl Taylor and Pat Lewit. You will remember that Carl fell while repairing his roof earlier this summer. He sustained multiple injuries and is having a slow recovery. Pat fractured her ankle in a freak accident. Although she was experiencing a lot of pain she managed to hobble on crutches to the opening day of school. Pat is on the executive teaching staff of New Hampshire Community Technical College.

The annual Birch Point picnic was held at Evelyn and Jim Kenney's lakeside home. There was enough food to feed a small village in Russia. The outstanding dish was "Frog More Stew." The wonderful concoction consisted of shrimp, corn, boiled potatoes and Polish sausage. It was served in a large stock pot.

Back Street was jumping with many visitors for the holiday. Joe and Penny Bernier hosted a party with 30 guests. There was a great softball game, fishing, country walks and lots of fun for all.

Roy Mace, Jean and Elizabeth Bernier, John and Avis Arata visited Vi and Ray Bernier. Chris Connelly, the Camerons and Guays also enjoyed the weekend at their camps.

There is still a large flock of mallards in the cove, but the geese have left the area. We did have a short visit from a large Canada gander. He landed on the beach, left a message and took off for Mollidgewalk Pond to continue his duty of polluting the water.

Although it has been a happy summer for most of us, it has held some sadness for others. We offer sympathy to the family of Romeo Lariviere. Romeo was a resident of Amesbury, Mass., but had a camp on Route 26, which he loved. Romeo died in Upton in August. His friends and neighbors will miss him.

We haven't had a frost yet, but the full moon was Sunday, so we should see the white stuff soon. Old sheets and covers are ready to hold off the deadly effects of the cold. We will fight Mother Nature till she wins the battle.

An odd little stillness hangs over all. We listen for sounds that aren't even there. School has recalled all children from all their play; their summer vacation has tipped away.

I recall at this time the many times I prepared for the opening day in the one-room, rural school. These little school houses, like the buffalo and horse and buggy are dim historical memories.

Once upon a time the school was the hub of the community, the haven of learning and the well-spring of all virtues.

Ages of pupils ranged from a precocious five to 14, and sometimes older. The smaller pupils sat in the front and progressed in age to the rear of the room.

Each day brought new and perplexing problems to be solved, which demanded tact and patience. The work was never monotonous. Teaching was fascinating because no day was ever the same. To be sure, there were times when I felt it necessary to count to 10 before saying anything. Then there were other times when an amusing incident made it difficult to keep back a chuckle.

I felt proud when Jim learned to read or John first learned to write his name well, because I, of all people on earth taught him those things.

It was a precious privilege to help to mold and shape the lives and destinies of the children, who were entrusted to me the greater part of the day.

I could learn as much from my pupils in a year as I could teach them. It was an opportunity to use my originality and initiative, which might have remained dormant in other work. So this week I "remember" and I'm glad I was a teacher.

The children learned not from books, only. They learned Right, Respect, Responsibility. So I may be justified in feeling that perhaps the world is a little better because "I taught school." I also attended a rural school during my childhood days.

The Milton Innans have been very busy this week clearing more trees from their yard because of their poor condition left by the ice storm in January. They have had several visitors including Harold and Alice Lathrop of Gouldsboro, en route from Alaska.

Ann and I were at the farm on Sunday after church. Bradley went to the races and David and Sally were at car shows until late afternoon.

It's always a joy to go to the farm and see Fay's lovely flowers. Mine aren't pretty this year because I haven't been there for them. They need attention and I couldn't give it.

Rena Cuthis has visited me this week trying to teach me a pattern in knitting.

Several of Rena's children and their families have visited her and then gone camping a few days.

It's time to go to work, so "good-bye for now."

South Woodstock

by Andrea Wing

Carla Phillips has taken a position at Crescent Park School in Bethel. She is still doing some farming here in South Woodstock, but I will miss all the farming trucks etc. This was the only dairy farm left in Woodstock. Good luck, Carla!

School has started and I'm sure most of the students are really happy to be back with their friends. Hope they all have a good year.

I had lunch with Laura Rand and Marcia Morse last week. They work in the office where I worked a few years ago. We try to keep in touch.

I've been out walking quite a bit since surgery. It seems real good to be able to do it without the pain. One day last week I saw Ethel Davis out taking a daily walk.

Joan Poland paid me a visit one day last week. Also, Rosalie Poland spent part of the afternoon one day recently.

My youngest grandchild, Jessie Hart, is now a senior at Oxford Hills Comprehensive High School. It doesn't seem possible they're all grown up.

June Demarest paid me a visit one day after I returned home from my operation.

Happy birthday to all those celebrating in September. They are Ricky Mack, Walter Appleby III, Amy Merrill, Dottie Criser, Patrice Dunn, Randy Mack, Maude Alice Hadley, Samantha Poland, Troy Ryerson, Joshua Appleby, Linda Smith, Darlene Hadley and Hazel Dillingham. A special birthday wish to my son Rick and grandson Doug Wing.

Doug Wing has left for the fall semester at Springfield College in Massachusetts. He will be majoring in sports management. We wish him much luck.

I had good news from my daughter Cheryl in Illinois last week. It seems I am the proud grandfather of a brand new, shiny little granddaughter; she arrived at 2:16 a.m. Monday, Aug. 31, weighing in at a healthy 6 pounds, 15 ounces. The little tyke goes by the handle Jana Marie in keeping the family tradition of first names beginning with "J," like her older brother Jacob and sister Jessica. I was informed that there has been such a rush of visitors that Cheryl isn't getting much rest since the proud event, and she is eager to get back into a normal routine.

In other news, the entire congregation of the West Bethel Union Church was saddened by the news that Pastor Joyce Scott will be leaving us about Thanksgiving, this November. Joyce has been with us for just two years, but in that time she has grown from being a kind of curiosity (a young lady minister testing her wings on us, her first full-time congregation) to a beloved religious inspiration who has endeared herself to every one of us, even a couple of skeptics who were initially uneasy with the idea of a lady minister. I think the quality that endears her most is her ability to involve the congregation in celebrations like christenings, weddings, and baptisms, as well as the big events like Christmas and Easter. She makes us all feel like part of the celebrations.

In her letter of resignation, Joyce said she did so with a heavy heart, because she has grown as close to the West Bethel community (I think) as the rest of us have grown to her. Her reasons are personal, having a baby born just last October and another due next February.

These family responsibilities leave her too little time to devote what she thinks is adequate time to her pastoral duties. We will all miss her and wish her the very best.

West Paris

by Miriam Inman

Beverly Stevens' sister, Meriel Bunker from Durham, N.H., spent some time with her and Vince during the weekend.

Ginny Aridas returned to Holbrook on Thursday after spending a week here.

Oxford County Fair will start on Wednesday, Sept. 16. The Parisians will play on Thursday, the 17th.

West Paris Historical Society will have a New England boiled dinner on Friday, Sept. 18, at the historical building. A dance will follow with music by the Parisians. Some improvements have been made at the society building. Last Saturday some new cupboard doors were installed. Workers were Ted Jones, Gordon Stevens, Sayward Lamb, Bill Ring and Harlan.

The benefit for the Dave Greig family is being held this Saturday, Sept. 12, from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Andover Fire Station. There will be a 50/50 raffle with tickets available at local establishments. There will be lots of food and many items are being auctioned. The benefit is being organized by Dave's church family from the Mexico Congregational Church and hosted at the fire station. All are invited for this time of sharing and healing.

The school year is off and running at Andover Elementary School. APT hosted an informational meeting regarding the multi-age program last Thursday evening. It was a very helpful meeting giving details on curriculum development and expectations. Presentations were made by the classroom teachers: Mrs. Melanie Ellsworth, Kindergarten; Mrs. Kathy Conrad, Grades One and Two; Mrs. Gail Brooks, Grades Three and Four; and Mr. John Emery, Grades Five and Six. The curriculum binder that was created by this hardworking staff will be available in the near future with copies being placed in the public library and the school office. Mrs. Eileen Pew, who acted as a representative for Andover parents throughout the development of the curriculum, assures all that this information is very user-friendly and well developed.

Grandparents' Day will be held on Friday, Sept. 11, from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Andover School. Festivities will be an open house format and refreshments will be served. Don't miss this wonderful annual event.

Calvary Congregational Church Awana clubs will kick-off the season with Fall Round-Up this Friday, Sept. 11, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Awana clubs are for all children in grades K through six. For this first Round-Up meeting, clubbers may wear cowboy duds, but please remember your sneakers for the fantastic game time. For more information, call 392-1121 or 392-1273. CCC also will open its Sunday School year with a pancake breakfast this Sunday, Sept. 13, at 8:30 a.m. with the Sunday School hour following at 9:30 a.m. Morning worship follows at 10:45 a.m. Sunday School classes are available for all ages, 3 to 103.

The summer reading program at the library held its year-end celebration last Saturday. Charlie Glazier read stories and the children received their well-deserved books for completing their reading goals. Congratulations everyone. The Irish Chain Quilt was won by Barbara Adams of Andover. Christie would like to thank all who purchased tickets. Proceeds will help purchase lighting for the downstairs.

Karen and Carson MacKay enjoyed a visit with Cruz and Lynn Thurston of Phillips. A Blues concert and rock-picking activities were enjoyed by all.

Get well wishes are extended to Otis Morton and Holman Farrar, who were both recently in the hospital.

Please be aware that several unattended properties have seen some vandalism recently, especially in the East Andover area. Be sure to contact proper authorities if you suspect or witness these crimes. There is nothing honorable or deserving of respect with these vicious acts. The sheriff's department has been contacted in previous situations this summer.

pulpit and daughter Nancy at the organ. Prelude was given by Jay Hanscom and responsive reading by Bob Munro. The Message of the Day was "Take," from St. Luke 17:7. "Then said He to another, and how much owest thou? And He said an hundred measure of wheat, and He said unto him; Take thy bill and write fourscore." Hymns were sung. The benediction and postlude ended the service.

Steve and Marlene Wight of Old Town, and Melissa Straus of Waterford were at Bill and Sylvia Wight's for a weekend recently.

The Windy Valleys Sno-Mobile Club met Tuesday night, Sept. 1, at the Warming Hut with Owen Wight presiding. Secretary Sylvia Harrington read the notes of the last meeting and took some more during the evening. Treasurer Bob Lowell brought the finances up to date and M.S.A. director/alternate Bill and Sylvia Wight reported on their 34th Maine Sno-Mobile meeting of Aug. 18 at the Elk Lodge in Augusta. Also, there was some reporting on the trails by the trail boys. A Flea Market was discussed for Oct. 10, or 11 if it rains on the 10th. Coffee and goodies were enjoyed during the meeting. The next meeting will be at the Town Building in October.

This will be short because Labor Day is on Monday, and I have to turn this in by hand on Saturday. My e-mail is still down and school is closed on Monday, so I can't use my e-mail there.

As careful readers now realize, many Newry residents, me included, now have new addresses. Those of us on the Sunday River side, that possess an RFD 3 address, now have Newry, ME 04261 at the end of our addresses. This would be great, but by the time we get it straight with all our correspondents, we'll have yet another change (#3). At some point in the future, we'll have an E-911 address with street names and numbers. That could be one month, six months, or a year or longer. Now that our mail goes through Newry, the Newry Post Office will be open longer hours. The P.O. window is now open Monday-Friday from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1 to 4:30 p.m. with the lobby being open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. On Saturday, the window is open from 8 to 11:45 a.m., with the lobby being open 8 a.m. to noon.

This week at the

Moses Mason House

The 33rd annual meeting of the Bethel Historical Society was held Thursday evening at Alder River Grange Hall in East Bethel. After a delicious polluck supper attended by more than 40 members and friends, the business meeting was called to order by president Walter Hatch. He announced that the next meeting would be held on Oct. 1 and would be the annual "What's It" meeting. The Nominating Committee report was given by chair Amy Davis. Nominated for office were: president, Walter Hatch; vice president, Alvin Barth; secretary and clerk of the trustees, Paul McGuire; treasurer, Arlene Lowell; trustees for three years, Priscilla Walker and Lois Kilroy. The slate was elected by a motion from the floor. President Hatch thanked retiring trustees Lorrie Hoeh and Margaret Wight for their fine work on the board over the past three years.

Mr. Hatch announced that there would be a Leaf Symphony Quilt Raffle to benefit the capital campaign to be drawn on Dec. 31, 1999 and urged all to get their opportunities to win as there would be a limited number of tickets available.

The "Gift of the Month" was the Civil War diary of John Mead Gould edited by William Jordan. It was the gift of Stephen T. Seames of Worcester, Mass. John Mead Gould was a Gould Academy graduate who married a Bethel Twitchell and is buried in Riverside Cemetery. President Hatch thanked Mr. Seames for his fine gift on the society's behalf.

A moment of silence was observed for all members who had died since the last annual meeting: Gabrielle Howe, Mildred Rackcliffe, Helen Philbrook, John Willard, Wilma Quimby, Marie Brown, Harold Chapman, Beatrice Grover, Ruth Watson, Dorothy Keddy Small, Dorothy Brink, June Greig, Louise Clough, George Noll, Olive Anderson, John Bean, Elizabeth Blake, and Arnel Brown.

Among the committee reports heard during the evening was one from Susan Herlihy of the Capital Campaign, who announced that nearly $250,000 had been raised to date including pledges, challenges, stock, gifts, and cash. She indicated that the committee planned a number of activities during the coming year to keep the campaign in the forefront of society activities.

The president reviewed some of the highlights of the past year: launching of the capital campaign; a major exhibit, "The Way Life Should Be"; a $1000 gift from Bob and Janet Spidell, for books for the research room; a $75,000 challenge grant from the Betterment Fund, for the capital campaign; creation of a Bethel Historical Society web site; the closing on the Elms property; two grants of $1,000 each from Exxon, for a television, VCR, and stand and another for a video camera and stand; several successful special events; more than 70 new members added to the rolls; numerous items added to the collection from more than 50 donors; and the installation of the stone steps at the back entrance to the Dr. Moses Mason House.

President Hatch presented the 12th annual Marjorie MacArthur Noll Volunteer Service Award to Edna York, who was honored for her service as a guide in the museum, as a longtime member of the Special Projects Committee, as the pianist at various society functions through the years, and as a generous donor to the annual fund since its inauguration more than 15 years ago. Mrs. York was made an honorary member in 1986.

The speaker for the evening was Dr. David Richards, assistant director of the Margaret Chase Smith Library, who spoke on the history of the Poland Spring resort, beginning in the 1790s and continuing to the turn of the century when the first automobile arrived at the famed hotel, foreshadowing the end of an era of grand hotel keeping in Maine.

Geno Delafosse's French Rockin' Boogie at Gould

"You never know which way we're coming from," says Geno Delafosse of his band's mix of Cajun and zydeco music, which successfully incorporates elements of modern country, rhythm and blues, and rock, while staying true to the traditional zydeco sound he grew up playing and singing in Louisiana with his father's legendary family band, the Eunice Playboys. Delafosse and his band, French Rockin' Boogie, will kick off the Gould Academy Performing Arts Series next Thursday evening, Sept. 17, and, according to one reviewer, who found the band's music "both infectiously danceable and relentlessly light-hearted," audiences will quickly discover that "standing still is not an option."

Derived from two-hundred years of cultural contact among Cajun, Afro-French, and Afro-American people in south Louisiana, zydeco is a syncopated musical blend driven by the accordion and sung sometimes in French, though more often in English. Delafosse, who performs fluently in both languages, is also what is known in zydeco circles as a "triple threat" -- he is a master of the piano accordion, Cajun accordion, and triple-row accordion. Regarded as a "cultural guardian with the courage to inject modern influences and themes into traditional zydeco, without sacrificing its integrity or spirit," Delafosse says of his style, "I'm pretty traditional, but I can step it up when I want to."

Geno Delafosse and French Rockin' Boogie will perform at Gould Academy's Bingham Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 17. The public is welcome, and tickets ($6 for adults and $4 for students) will be available at the door. For further information, please contact Vicki Rackliffe at 824-3575.

KEEP US IN MIND

It's that time of year when your local Rotary Club must start gathering items for our annual auction. The proceeds of all of our efforts go to support such projects as the Senior Citizen Christmas Dinner, Christmas Food Baskets for the needy, student scholarships, support of the local health facilities, summer camp tuitions, area athletes expenses, disabled individual needs, etc.

If you're cleaning the garage, attic or cellar, let us get rid of those unneeded items for you. Call Al Barth 824-2931 for pick-up.

Help us with your support of our projects. It's a good feeling!
